

Corcentric Source-to-Pay Software

Innovative solutions to advance Finance and Procurement success

Organizations continue to face challenges when it comes to gaining control over their spend and cash flow. Due to globalization and mergers, acquisitions, and divestitures, many organizations face a daunting challenge when it comes to how to coordinate disparate systems, processes, and personnel to enable a unified, transparent view of their organizational spend and the cash flow associated with it. Struggles with supplier onboarding, centralizing purchasing, accounting workflow, or payment processing, all contribute to inefficient processes which cause unnecessary risks and costs throughout the supply chain.

While software by itself does not solve all these issues, the right software goes a long way to move organizations away from reactive, inefficient processes to proactive, efficient, and transparent processes. Proceeding in this direction helps drive operational excellence to better support the demands of the business.
